hundred tricks to make lovely woman doubly attractive.

For instance, any one can manicure a pair of hands, but few are able to cure redness of the skin and swollen veins. She advises muscular action. One woman is ordered to fan herself; a lorgnette mounted on a rod of silver is suggested for another, so that when not in use the too highly colored members are piled on the tip of the rod, thus forcing the blood down from the hands; a third is told to knit incessantly. hands; a third is told to knit incessantly, and the writer has in mind two beautiful women pursuing this plan whose names are famous in both continents. Of all the who do not smoke, and state rooms may be who do not smoke, and state rooms may be remarkable things done by this very re-markable woman that of dressing a lady's arms exceeds averything else. have so largely conduced. One season of bare arms on the beach is all the lesson a society woman needs; after that she takes her ocean dip in loug sleeves, silk mitts and a broad brimmed hat, But the mischief accomplished, it is necessary to pluck the arms before the fair creature can appear in evening dress. In this oper can appear in evening dress. In this oper ation the madame is an expert. She goes over the arm with a pair of tweezers the day of the opera, ball or carpet party, and drawing out the darker hair from shoulder to wrist, resorts to some delicate paste to conceal the down that remains. Of course this treatment has to be repeated for each subsequent occasion, and those ladies who go in society a great deal find the low-neck and short-sleeve bodice a very expen-sive fashion. These visits are kept pro-foundly secret and are made by appoint ment. One lady pays the madame $100 ayear to dress her right arm only, the left she does herself, and a well-known sing-er's pretty mouth is kept free from the hateful shade of a dark mustache for $60,

Some haif dozen women of position and wealth goato the parlor to have their hair examined and the threads of silver pulled out or touched with bleaching fluid. While many of her parrons are not in a position to keep a maid, there are more who prefer that the servants as well as the members of their family be kept in ignorance of the annoyance resulting from creeping age.

Wellington to his soldiers just before the battle of Waterloo and history tells us how well interest they obeyed. The same advice might properly be given to every living man at this time. There are many men who would do their whole duty in time of war or great need, but who sadly neglect in times of peace; they would gladly risk their lives for their country, but when there is no such great occasion, neglect their plain simple duty to their God, their families and themselves. It is not for want of honor no because they do not love their families.

He soon revived and was taken to his room, and beyond considerable nervous prostration is uninjured. He described the shock to be the same as if he were struck on the breast with a club, but said that while the pain was intense for the instant, it lasted such a short time that it was gone before he realized what had been done. Other employes of the railway have received milder shocks and all assert their fearlessness of coming into contact with the 200-voit current.
